WHAT'S HAPPENING AT THE WAM?

WAM has new digs. In late February, the WAM learned that their building sold which caused the WAM to relocate. In a few weeks' time they were fortunate enough to find a new home in Fairhaven at 1103 11th St. On Wednesday March 9th the WAM secured a new site and the crew began prepping the building for the move-in. At the same time they had to tear-down the old WAM and vacate the premises.

Everyone was excited about the prospect for a new home, and a new look, so much so that 40 WAG Members committed to a 12 month lease to be WAM Vendors. The Vendors, spouses, and friends began working in unison cleaning, painting, building, and doing electrical work.

These folks have worked together like a finely tuned motor; each having their area of responsibility. Those having the necessary construction and electrical skills volunteered and have done an excellent job with the layout and design of the new WAM.

At the time of this publication, the WAM crew will begin moving everything into the new site, with a goal of opening their doors mid-April. There are plans for a Grand Opening and open house shortly thereafter. Once the dates have been set, WAG Members will be notified via email.

Thanks to everyone who has shared the work and made this endeavor a success.

"Puppy Love"

Pencil Drawing by Joyce Norfolk

Our March General Meeting agenda was full and interesting. We covered basic business matters before three members shared about artwork that they had brought to the meeting. Linda Ougland shared her creations made from chicken feathers and gourds. Keith Johnson shared a humorous sign he had made re: "His artistic license". Joyce Norfolk shared a pencil sketch she is doing of the Wall of Honor for all of the fallen Washington law enforcement officers.

Two of our new members were introduced: Skip Patten, who is a retired carpenter and is now a wood carver. John Young is a former fisherman and plumber from Alaska who recently began painting at the age of 75.

Awards were given for "Artist's of the Month"; and our guest speakers from the Weaver's Guild gave a delightful presentation with fabulous textiles to show us as seen on the front page.

Phyllis Howard ended the evening with a presentation about the big Art Market move and all the factors leading to that decision. The meeting was adjourned.

The Whatcom Art Guild has been privileged to be able to hang our works at Village Books each month. We appreciate this great opportunity!

Venues provided for our members

Are you aware of all the ongoing opportunities for displaying your work that are open to you as a WAG member for 2016?

Art Challenges and Critiques

Over the course of the year, WAG hosts Art Challenges (members bring in work created for a theme) and opportunities for critique at our monthly meetings. Information about these opportunities to show your work – either finished or work in progress – at our meetings to supporting and friendly members is posted on the Guild's website and in our newsletter; watch monthly as these opportunities arise.

Artist of the Month

Bring your work to the meeting and members will vote for their favorites during the break. The top 4 pieces will be displayed during the following month at one of four venues: The Colophon Café, Banner Bank in Fairhaven, Banner Bank in Bellingham, and front and center in the Whatcom Art Market.

Bellwether Gateway Complex

Beth Roberson leads this venue, which comprises the lobbies/foyers in three of the buildings in the Bellwether Gateway Complex. The theme of this venue is "Art of the Northwest. This is an ongoing opportunity to display your work. If you would like to participate, contact Beth Roberson at crownlanebeth@comcast.net.

Village Books, Fairhaven

WAG is hanging on the wall in the author's reading room, rotating on a monthly basis. The wall holds approximately 6-10 works, depending on their size. Turnover is at the first of the month; the next opportunity will be the month of May. Lorraine Day is leading this venue; stay tuned for an upcoming Call for Artists.

New! The Hair Art Studio

Laurel Piper has located another venue that would like to feature WAG members' artwork. It is called The Hair Art Studio and is located at 109 Prospect. Its website is <http://thehairartstudio.blogspot.com/>. More info to come.

BelleWood Acres

This venue is over for this year, but keep it in mind for the holiday season 2016. BelleWood Acres is a wonderful farm/deli/store on the Guide which has a large gallery room upstairs. WAG traditionally 'takes over' the gallery for November through February and we do it up proud! Christine Flacco leads this venue, and will be putting out a Call for Artists as the holiday season approaches.

WAG at the Jansen Art Center, Lynden

WAG exhibited as a group at the Jansen last summer in June and July, under the themes of 'Raspberries and Farm Life' and 'Cups.' We were very well received, and the Jansen has invited us back again this June and July. The Jansen Art Center is a wonderful venue, with shoulder-to-shoulder crowds on the opening night – we are thrilled to be returning this year. The theme will be "A Sense of Place: The Pacific Northwest." Like last year, this will be a curated show; all members may submit entries to a team of WAG curators, who will then submit the collection to the Jansen for their final picks. The deadline for submitting your work to the WAG curating team will be May 1. Use form on page 10 and follow the specific instructions closely.

In addition to these ongoing opportunities, WAG Board members are actively working to develop other venues, both for curated shows and for open, all-member exhibits. We are researching venues for a summer show and a holiday arts and crafts fair, as well as smaller venues for individual artists. Come to the meetings and read your newsletter to catch these new opportunities as they arise.

"The Flathead's Gotta Go"

Michael White would like to expand the website but needs content from the artists to include.

He is asking that all members submit an artist statement and images of their work.

The Whatcom Art Guild Presents A Sense of Place: The Pacific Northwest

The deadline for submission is May 1st. The show will be juried by both WAG and The Jansen via digital photo images.

1. All submissions must be emailed to Lorraine Day at mesmerie1@gmail.com not later than May 1, 2016.
2. Format: The image file should be in .JPG format at least 300KB, but no larger than 1MB. Only work of high reproduction quality will be accepted. Images are to be free of any extraneous backgrounds. 3-D images photograph better on black or white backgrounds. DO NOT include the frame in the image.
3. Artist Statement: An Artist’s Statement must be submitted.
