The New WAG ART SHOW

The WAG is gearing up for a couple of Art Shows to be held during 2017. At the Board Meeting last Tuesday, the WAG Board and WAM discussed promotional ideas for shows in 2017, and decided to form a subcommittee who's purpose would be to brainstorm ideas for a new WAG Art Show. The subcommittee's purpose would be to come up with a promotional "recipe" or plan for a new look for these shows. If we begin planning now, there may be enough time to plan and hold a Spring Show in 2017.

We are presently seeking volunteers to join this committee which will work on creating the format for an exciting, attractive show for next spring. Topics up for discussion include, but are not limited to the following:

Researching and identifying 2-3 possible venue locations. Information such as location, rental rate, capacity, features (kitchen, PA system, chairs/tables availability, etc.) and prospective dates which the venue will be available should be decided upon.

How the event will be curated, and identify personnel to serve as curator.

Design a cohesive and attractive display format.

Cost effective advertising.

Research the possibility of sponsorship.

Recruit Show VP and Show Chair.

Identify and specify how many and what type of volunteers will be needed.

We are hoping to hold our first meeting on Saturday July 16 (time & location to be determined) provided this is a good date for all involved.

We want your ideas. To ensure a seat on this committee, simply email Joyce Norfolk at studiogals@aol.com or call 360 389-7964.

WAG General Meeting - July 12 will be held at the Bellingham Public Library

The program for July 12 will be Michael Moynahan. He will show his portrait drawings and give us some insight into how he captures the personality of his subjects.

Karen's Sketchbook of Southern France 2016

Above is a scene from my window of the hotel where we stayed in Toulouse for three days before the workshop began. The scene to the right is market day in the village of Limoux, which was our homebase for the workshop. The scene was so lively and full of color and subjects that I had to quickly choose what to put into my sketch, and what to leave out. I wanted to capture the essence of this busy market day. Sketching these scenes etches it into my memory forever.

These watercolor sketches are taken from the sketchbook of Karen Ver Burg.

Sketching in a French village square with my café au lait and friends is one of my favorite things to do! This is Limoux, France and surrounding area where Celia Clarke and I attended a watercolor workshop taught by Ron Stocke for 10 days in May. Here I tried to simplify this complicated scene by sketching only enough details to describe the scene and sense of place.

I hope that my sketches inspire you to use sketching as a way of journaling your experiences, and etching them into your memory.

I sketched the scene above of Villar-saint-Anselme, a village down the hill from a vineyard where we painted one morning. It's important to simplify a scene, and capture only enough information to use for reference in later more finished works.

Tower of London on the front and English countryside to the left. Lamp framework made of English oak atop a birch log base.

Jeff Eastman Completed British-theme lamp

This British-themed lamp is made of painted stained glass pieces glued to clear tempered glass panels. The wood framework is made of English oak atop a hollow, de-barked birch tree trunk. To add depth to the four scenes, some painting was done on both sides of the stained glass and clear glass pieces which were then baked in a normal oven at 325 degrees Fahrenheit for 45 minutes to ensure the paint is dishwasher-safe, not that I ever planned on testing paint manufacturer Pebeo's claim. Some paint details required multiple coats to increase the color depth, and each paint layer then required additional baking.

A particular challenge was the traditional British telephone booth and the details inside the booth. Knowing my painting skills could not do justice to the interior, I decided to cut the interior paper section out and glue it on to the front of the clear glass panel. Remembering Ray Bradbury's book Fahrenheit 451 and his claim that this is the temperature at which paper autoignites, I put faith in his claim and proceeded to paint the rear portions of the booth on the back of the clear glass panel. After baking this piece for 45 minutes at 126 degrees below Bradbury's claim, it was with great anticipation that I opened the oven door after several hours of gradual cooling. What a sense of relief when I saw the paper undamaged, a moment punctuated by my exclamation, "You were right, Ray!" Transfer type on paper for the front TELEPHONE sign and the tapered side TELEPHONE sign made with Photoshop were later baked in the oven with similar success.

The White Cliffs of Dover on one side and a typical English telephone booth on the back side.

Linda Calkins has painted a montage of pets that have passed away. "The horse is my old mare Baby Doll who left me last year. The second is a little dog named Tator who belonged to a good friend and the third is Lola who belonged to my daughter and family. All were loved and are missed".

Classifieds

ARTIST SEEKS STUDIO SPACE

I am a painter/mixed media artist recently moved to Bellingham from the mid-west. I am looking for a studio space to rent immediately with good light, access to nearby water and restroom and most importantly, located on the main floor with no, (to only a few) steps to climb to gain entry to studio. I work on fairly large canvases and large sheets of paper for drawing and collage work. I would be open to sharing only if the space is large enough to allow two artists to work comfortably. If you know of an available space for rent please contact Sandra Abrams, 314-330-5903 (c) or email:sjabrams777@aol.com.

New! The Hair Art Studio

Laurel Piper has located another venue that would like to feature WAG members' artwork. It is called The Hair Art Studio and is located at 109 Prospect. Its website is <http://thehairartstudio.blogspot.com/>. More info to come.

Art Challenges and Critiques

Over the course of the year, WAG hosts Art Challenges (members bring in work created for a theme) and opportunities for critique at our monthly meetings. Information about these opportunities to show your work – either finished or work in progress – at our meetings to supporting and friendly members is posted on the Guild's website and in our newsletter; watch monthly as these opportunities arise.

Artist of the Month

Bring your work to the meeting and members will vote for their favorites during the break. The top 4 pieces will be displayed during the following month at one of four venues: The Colophon Café, Banner Bank in Fairhaven, Banner Bank in Bellingham, and front and center in the Whatcom Art Market.

Village Books, Fairhaven

WAG is hanging on the wall in the author's reading room, rotating on a monthly basis. The wall holds approximately 6-10 works, depending on their size. Turnover is at the first of the month; the next opportunity will be the month of August. Lorraine Day is leading this venue; stay tuned for an upcoming Call for Artists.

BelleWood Acres

This venue is over for this year, but keep it in mind for the holiday season 2016. BelleWood Acres is a wonderful farm/deli/store on the Guide which has a large gallery room upstairs. WAG traditionally 'takes over' the gallery for November through February and we do it up proud! Christine Flacco leads this venue, and will be putting out a Call for Artists as the holiday season approaches.

WAG at the Jansen Art Center, Lynden

WAG has exhibited as a group at the Jansen in juried shows both last summer and this summer. Theme currently on display: "A Sense of Place: The Pacific Northwest". This is a curated show.

VOTE

"Best of the Northwest"
Very easy to do! Simply vote for 10 things. You fill in the blanks. The "best" art gallery could be the Whatcom Art Market. What a great advertisement this would be if we could win "Best of the Northwest"! Go to this website:
